Bharat Forge: Exports and defence biz to aid growth

Margins, cash flows to remain elevated on operating leverage, minimal capex

RAM PRASAD SAHU
Mumbai, 4 June

The Bharat Forge stock gained nearly 8 per cent and hit its 52-week high after the company posted better-than-expected financials for the March quarter (Q4). The management commentary, which highlighted multiple growth drivers across verticals over the medium term, added to the positive sentiment.

Powered by growth across segments, the company reported a 48 per cent year-on-year (YoY) upturn in revenues with domestic and exports contributing equally to sales. The Street had pegged the growth in the 20-30 per cent range largely driven by the commercial vehicle portfolio.

While the YoY growth was significant, it was the export performance on a sequential basis that surprised the Street. The domestic business grew by 10 per cent sequentially, but exports jumped 42 per cent. The company indicated that this was driven by a 90 per cent growth in the industrial segment with incremental gains coming from the passenger vehicle space, where sales hit an all-time high.

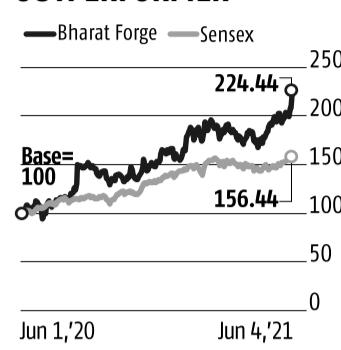

One area that's improved in the industrial segment is oil and gas, with demand returning on rising crude oil prices. From a peak of ₹1,000 crore revenues on an annual basis, the segment had collapsed, denting the company's industrial export pie.

The strong class 8 commercial vehicle orders in Q4 also helped. However, after consistently staying over the 40,000 units per month for six months till March 2021, orders have started to trend down over the last couple of months with May orders at 22,900. While underlying demand remains strong, the company indicated that this is due to chip shortage and the situation should improve in two months.

Over the medium term, the US government's $6-trillion budget that focuses on multiple areas, including transportation, is expected to boost demand for commercial vehicles (CVs), according to the management. This should translate to higher growth for the segments the company caters to within the CV space. Growth for the India truck market, however, is expected to be weak in the near term, with recovery expected by the second half of the current financial year.

With improving demand in the export market, higher utilisation and better mix, operating profit margins improved 310 basis points on a sequential basis to 25.5 per cent. This was achieved despite higher logistics costs, which have risen sharply. Profitability of its international subsidiaries has also improved from 5 per cent three years ago to double digits (10 per cent) now. The company expects the trend to sustain and cash flows to improve with lower fixed costs, improving product portfolio and production scale up of aluminium forging facilities.

While the India auto revenues will see some headwinds in the near term, the prospects for the industrial and defence segment offers support. The company has acquired Sanghvi Forgings, which will help it tap growth opportunities in the infrastructure and renewal energy space.

With Kalyani Strategic Systems now a 100 per cent subsidiary, defence projects is the other growth area. The company is expected to benefit from the recent government order and setting up of greenfield units with investment of ₹240 crore over the next two-three years.

While the medium-term prospects are sound, there could be near-term headwinds for the CV segment. This coupled with the sharp gains post Q4 results indicates that some benefits are factored in. Investors should await better entry levels into the stock before considering investment.

The company reported a 48% YoY upturn in revenues with domestic and exports contributing equally to sales
